writing history will be explored within the curriculum. These include, cultural, social, political, post-colonial, military, biographical and environmental perspectives. The BA (Hons) History is also concerned to support Skills, Employability and Enterprise (encompassing Public History) and the acquisition of practical competencies and experience relevant to the discipline as a professional activity.

The course aims will be expressed here in terms of both general and specific aims.

The general aims of the History course are:

- x To provide an intellectually stimulating and satisfying experience of academic history with guidance and encouragement to develop both theoretical and practical capabilities in its study.
- x To enable students to develop subject knowledge together with subject specific, cognitive, and key transferable skills of value in graduate employment or postgraduate study.
- x To promote increasing participation in higher education for the local community by supporting a range of learners, including non-traditional entrants.
- x To exemplify the positive social and cultural influence of the University of Suffolk within the local area by working with the local community, where possible, in the development of historical understandings about the locality, the region and it's
